Revised for 2023-24 Structure the course to include (at least one of these must be a draft-revision sequence: see above).

At least 1 of the 3 formal writing assignments must be a that meets the criteria of the writing portfolio rubric (see the definition & criteria below on page 9).

Other writing in the course can include informal or low-stakes writing assignments (e.g., reflections, responses, etc.).

FYS faculty should keep in mind the requirements of the First-Stage Writing Proficiency Portfolio and design writing assignments that provide students with opportunities to write essays that meet the submission requirements.

Students can not drop or withdraw from an FYS course unless switching to a different seminar early in the semester. The only other way a student can withdraw from an FYS is if they withdraw from all of their courses.

All FYS instructors should include the following policy (adapted as needed) in their syllabus and integrate it into their grading criteria:

- dd In order to receive a grade of S ("Satisfactory") in this course, students must complete and turn in all components of each of the major processes and products, as they gain knowledge of writing as part of a liberal arts education and within a specific discipline. Completion of this Two-Stage Writing Proficiency requirement is a college degree requirement.

The First-Stage Writing Proficiency requirement is designed to introduce students to college-level writing expectations, as they learn to enter a scholarly conversation, enhance their abilities in writing expository essays, develop skills in expressing critical analysis, and communicate knowledge to an audience using specific rhetorical conventions. The First-Stage Writing requirement aims to prepare students for more complex writing tasks within an academic discipline. Thus, it is expected that students will complete the First-Stage Writing requirement before they complete the Second-Stage in their major. (See the College Catalog for more information about the Two-Stage Writing Proficiency Requirement.)

For all students who enter as first-time first-year students, the First-Stage Writing Proficiency requirement will be determined in the first semester on the basis of performance in both First-Year Seminars (FYS) and the First-Year Portfolio, which includes a portfolio of writing assignments.

Assign informal or low-stakes writing assignments to give students opportunities to work on their writing practice and process.

Share sample writing to illustrate your writing expectations, pedagogy, and the features of expository essays.

Hold required student conferences at any point during the writing process: prewriting, drafting, or grading conferences.

Discuss assignment rubrics in class (especially the Portfolio rubric); students can also be included in developing or using grading rubrics for their assignments.

Discuss plagiarism so all students have knowledge of how and why to cite sources. *Note: separate information will be distributed about ChatGPT and AI.

Teach students the citation style you want them to use for the essays in your class and have them use that style consistently.

Use the Turabian book, Student's Guide to Writing College Papers to supplement your writing instruction and as a reference resource for students.

Consult the resources on the Oxy Writing Center website and on the Moodle site "Writing Resources for Faculty."

Review the Portfolio Guide with students several times during the semester, starting in
